- Really kind people
- Very clean
- Hair is a little bad
- Don't understand much
- On Death
- Very dangerous
- Usually don't touch
- And this is Japan is isolation, probably
- Because of having each other
- For a long time. I don't go much

Sorry for the trouble

Excuse me

Japan used to have exchange with England, Spain and Portugal too, but after the isolation, the one who the kept in touch with was Netherlands. (By the way, because Spain and Portugal felt like they could be dangerous, they got kicked out)

Despite being in isolation, Japan always managed to get fast information about Europe from the Holland Scripture (荷書 蘭文書) Netherlands always brought with him every time which summarized the happenings in Europe and its surroundings

And the three-layered cage was a social type of coat of the time. Totally cool!

[Surrounded Japan]

In the beginning of 19th century, European and American ships began to sail around Japan's surroundings

Before USA, there were other countries who tried to break Japan's isolation. Among them, "that country" became rather pivotal, but we'll discuss about that later.

Good day, Mr. Jackson is your doctor

Is there a moving event and outside doors

Because that he is getting lonely because of that he is not feeling all healthy

One more

his sister

Don't give up okay?

I guess that will be pretty good for you both, there you are

Now,
what shall I do?
I am a rabbit
after all

Got

you got sick?
you mention I in this response to it?

In 1978, Luxembourg started to make the United Kingdom of Great Britain with the long-disputed border Belgium.

However, in the long 1970 years of negotiation, the interest of making Luxembourg join mainly worked with the border between Belgium and France. Particularly with Belgium, which was mainly represented and strongly influenced by France who was Catholicism didn't work well, ending up with Belgium checking the independence in 1990.

How we do it

Mathematics lessons already involved basic ideas, but the system allowed them to be adapted to suit different groups within the classroom at a particular time. Different groups working at different levels, at different times. Some students, given the opportunity to do it at their appropriate pace. And it meant they had a lot of flexible, well-considered
